

Do One Brave Thing Every Day

Investing in Women is Investing in Everything.

Brave Women Project® is a Pittsburgh-based 501(c)(3) nonprofit building the infrastructure that professional women need to lead, grow, and create lasting change.

Who We Are

Founded in 2020 with a single Skype meeting, BWP has grown into a vibrant international community. Established as a nonprofit in 2021, we now serve more than 200 active members across the U.S. and beyond through in-person events and monthly virtual gatherings.

Our membership-based model is organized around four pillars: Relationships, Professional Development, Impact, and Wellness.

Every program we deliver is guided by our 5 Es for Life: Educate, Empower, Encourage, Engage, and Evolve. These are not just values. They are the framework behind every program we design, every partnership we build, and every woman we serve.

Bravery Changes Everything

We have seen what happens when a woman feels truly seen, supported, and equipped to lead. She stops shrinking. She starts building. She stops waiting for permission. She starts creating change. And then she carries that momentum outward. She mentors the colleague who almost quit. She leads the organization that wasn't sure it wanted a woman at the helm. She starts the business, funds the cause, and pulls the next woman up behind her. Brave Women Project exists for that moment, and everything that follows. Your investment makes that moment possible, again and again, for women who are ready to lead and a world that needs them to. When you invest in BWP, you set that ripple in motion.

The impact does not stop with her. It never does.

“I've been a member of Brave Women Project of Pittsburgh for the past year, and I can say without hesitation that some of the most meaningful, soul-level conversations I've experienced have happened at the Diamond Dinners. There is something powerful about the way women gather in this space. We show up as we are. No masks, no posturing, just truth, authenticity, and connection. It is more than worth the annual investment. It is a return on connection, community, and the kind of alignment you can't manufacture.

I am deeply grateful to be part of Brave Women Project in Pittsburgh because it has been one of the most authentic and life-giving experiences. From the very first gathering, I felt something rare and extraordinary in the room. These were high-level, accomplished professional women - leaders, visionaries, experts in their fields - yet they showed up not with competition or comparison, but with open hearts.

What has always stood out to me about Brave Women Project is that it's not about selling, pitching, or transactional networking. It's about showing up as yourself, building genuine relationships, and trusting that meaningful connections will lead where they're meant to go. Through BWP, I've built relationships that feel real - rooted in generosity, trust, and shared growth. Those connections have naturally opened doors professionally, but more importantly, they've changed how I show up as a leader. I lead with more openness, collaboration, and confidence, knowing I'm part of a community that truly supports one another.
